

Pre-tenure Instructional Load in PHHS

All tenure track faculty members in the School of Public Health and Health Sciences appointed on or after September 1, 2012, shall have at least a two-course reduction in instructional load during their probationary period. This two-course reduction shall ordinarily be taken within the first three years of appointment, with the precise scheduling to be determined by the department chair/head after consultation with the faculty member, but alternative timing may be arranged by mutual agreement between the department chair/head and the faculty member.